The Two-day SQ Training Program

Taking responsibility, moving to the next level, customer satisfaction, peak performance, optimal results, growth and success are the buzz words of the organizations today. They are operating in a turbulent and hyper-competitive environment under never-before-experienced pressure for change and transformation. The best way to sustain performance and growth under such stressful and challenging situations is to fortify their human resource which is the live wire. Harnessing the potential of every employee is the key to success. The traditional training programs conducted by companies certainly add value to the development of human resources but they have a tunnel vision. They focus on developing only cerebral capabilities of the individual leaving out the core issues.

SQ is the commander-in-chief of our inner world and manifests outwardly in terms of our outlook, attitude, values, behavior, emotional mastery, adaptability, performance and fulfillment. This training program is engineered to address the issues related to personal and professional development holistically.
